

Introduction

The East Asian Studies Students' Union (EASSU) is an active student body dedicated to the undergraduate students of the East Asian Department. We are not only a liaison between students and the department, but we are here to make your learning experience more enjoyable and fulfilling. Throughout the year, we hold both academic and social events that relate to the East Asian cultures.

If you are interested in helping out with events or would like to participate in an event, please contact us. We are located on the 14th floor of Roberts Library (Rm 14299) or e-mail us at eassu@hotmail.com. Get INVOLVED and make your university experience the best it can be.

Wu was seen as a good teacher who was able to answer students' questions and concerns. Many students felt that the presence of native speakers, or people with previous background in Chinese, was a big hindrance to the rest of the class. Overall, a good course though while heavy in memorization; the knowledge gained was worth the task.

Sakaki received lots of praise for her organized lectures and for going beyond what was covered, making it interesting and still on topic. The work was graded very fairly and the chance to participate on the web and in class was a plus for those who were not comfortable speaking in front of others. The reading was considered quite heavy for a 200-series course, but the material covered and the choice of articles made up for it.

This course had a lot of students who were fluent in the language and students who didn't have prior background felt that their presence clearly unbalanced the marking scheme.

Griffiths was a very good instructor who was extremely organized with her lectures. The way she got the students to be proactive in the class and force the students to really use all the Japanese they have had to learn from 3 years of Japanese or elsewhere, really made the course worthwhile.

This was a very demanding course (especially for only a half-year credit) but Komuro-Lee was such an enthusiastic teacher and really knew what she was trying to teach. Be prepared to do a lot of work, but the rewards are worth it.
